"We have been able to model and promote the use of renewable energy, give a boost to the solar industry, improve air quality and reduce problems associated with global warming. The system goes on line itself with morning's first light and stays online as long as the sun's up. On a normal summer day we can actually produce more electricity than we use. The excess power we generate is fed back to the grid. Neighbours, friends and family are very interested in our solar PV project."
